

The Personal Field Guides

No. 01: Fragrance

INTERIM FLOWED PROOF - CREATIVE REVIEW

Temporary proof pagination only. This PDF is not final Vellum pagination, final print pagination, or final folio authority.

The Personal Field Guides No. 01

The Personal Field Guides No. 01

FRAGRANCE

A field guide to memory, identity, and becoming

A fragrance is never only a fragrance.

Introduction

A fragrance is never only a fragrance.

It is a chemical composition.

Notes. Materials. Molecules. Structure.

But that is not why we remember them.

We remember them because they attach themselves to something else.

A person.

A place.

A moment.

A version of ourselves that existed before we understood it was temporary.

I have spent my life smelling things.

Not casually.

Not simply deciding whether something smells good or bad.

I need to sense the ingredients.

The pieces.

Turn them over.

Separate them.

Understand the relationships between them.

I require the interference.

Dissonance.

There are relationships.

Intervals.

Major, minor.

Diminished, augmented.

A fragrance is not only what it contains.

It is how those things relate.

The same way music is not only notes.

It is the distance between them.

The tension.

The suspension.

The release.

The resolution.

I have always lived with contradiction.

Not because contradiction is comfortable.

Because I require it.

The things I love most often exist in the spaces between opposing truths.

Warm and cold.

Sweet and bitter.

Beautiful and strange.

Familiar and foreign.

A fragrance can be smooth and unsettling at the same time.

A memory can be joyful and painful.

A person can be both the greatest love of your life and the source of your deepest regret.

Both things can be true.

The interval is where the meaning lives.

The Legend

The ratings in this book are not verdicts.

They are immediacy.

They are evolution.

A fragrance is not frozen at first encounter.

It changes because we change.

*

THE LIGHTNING BOLT

This.

One smell and I know.

No courtship, no persuasion, no second date required.

*

THE COURTSHIP

There's something between us.

I'm interested, but I'm not ready to take you home.

Let's spend some time together.

No promises.

*

THE CHALLENGE

I dare you.

Chances are I won't like you, but hell, I'm game.

Let's get weird.

*

THE TEST

I still love you somewhere else.

Wet stone. Orange blossom. Leather. Smoke. Pine. A garage.

Now let's find out if I want you on my skin.

*

THE OUTLIER

You shouldn't be here.

But here you are.

Apparently I don't know myself as well as I thought.

Chapter I

Peel, Citrus, Herbs and Green Light

Citrus Aurantium

Source: CITRUS_AURANTIUM_LOCKED_MASTER.jpg - Page-level scaling only; internal pixels unchanged

I don't think I love citrus.

At least not in the way fragrance usually asks me to love it.

I don't particularly want an orange.

I want the orange tree.

I want the oil that spits from the peel when you bend it. The bitter white pith underneath. The waxy green leaves crushed between your fingers. The blossoms when they arrive and somehow manage to smell both innocent and sexual. The wood. The dirt.

The fruit by itself is almost too easy.

The citrus fragrances I respond to tend to have something interfering with the fruit: bitterness, herbs, woods, moss, petitgrain, neroli, dirt.

Something green enough to keep the sweetness honest.

I require the interference.

Dissonance.

The smell is often strongest at the transition--the moment dry becomes wet, or wet begins to warm again.

That interval may be the most powerful of all: the moment one thing becomes another, when both are briefly present at once.

The chimera.

There are relationships.

Intervals.

Major, minor.

Diminished, augmented.

That's what I want from this family of fragrances.

Not necessarily photorealism.

I'm not asking a perfumer to reproduce an orange tree molecule by molecule.

I want the relationships to remain intact.

I need the pieces.

*

4711

Before I understood fragrance as identity, seduction, aspiration, or taste, there was my grandfather.

4711 belongs to him.

Not exclusively, of course.

Millions of people have worn it for nearly two centuries.

But memory is selfish that way.

A fragrance can belong to the world and still belong completely to one person.

My grandfather was the closest thing I had to a father when I was young.

He gave me something uncomplicated:

Time.

Attention.

Inclusion.

He took me fishing.

He let me into his world.

And somewhere inside the accumulation of those experiences is the cool citrus-herbal smell of 4711.

4711 / Grandpa

THE PERSONAL FIELD GUIDES

SPECIMEN 001

4711

Eau de Cologne

ORIGINAL EAU DE COLOGNE
MÜHLENSTRASSE 4711, COLOGNE, GERMANY
EST. 1792

FAMILY: Citrus Aromatic

TYPE:
Eau de Cologne

NOTES (PRIMARY):
Bergamot, Lemon, Petitgrain, Neroli,
Orange, Rosemary

ACCORDS:
Citrus • Herbal
Clean • Bright

WEARS LIKE:
A morning.
A white shirt.
A fresh start.

PERIOD: Childhood—Present
c. age 12

ACQUISITION: Gifted / Shared with Grandpa

Citrus x aurantium L.

- A. Flowering branch 1. Flower 2. Longitudinal section of flower
3. Fruit (cross section) 4. Seed 5. Pistil 6. Ovary
7. Section of ovary 8. Stamen (axial view) 9. Stamen (lateral view)
10. Opened corolla with stamens

— 12 —

FRAGRANCE • SPECIMEN NO. 001

FIELD NARRATIVE

c. age 12

Grandpa always splashed on 4711 before we headed downstairs. The Negresco. The Dorchester. The Ritz. The Palace. Lugano. Hotel lobbies are part of the smell now.

In Nice, I came back from swimming in the Mediterranean and walked into the white-marble lobby of the Negresco without a shirt. There was tar stuck to my feet.

A man in an elaborate hotel uniform stopped me.

Instead of scolding me, he dragged an enormous gilded Louis XIV chair—with a beautiful silk seat—right into the middle of the lobby. He sat me down and began cleaning the tar from my feet with solvent.

He made a production of it for me.

I loved every second.

Grandpa was there.

There were fish we looked at together and giggled over. Ice-cream boats at the Mississippi ice-cream parlor. The Jacques Cousteau museum.

Lunch in Monte Carlo.

Somehow they occupy the same place in my memory.

4711. TAR. TURPENTINE.

— 13 —

FIELD NOTES

He wore 4711 when we played tennis.
His closet smelled like 4711.
So did parts of the world we saw together.
Nice. Marbella.
4711 reminds me of his hat.
It also reminds me of the hotels
we stayed in throughout Europe.
Elegance and grime.
The same memory.
4711. Tar. Turpentine.

EXTRACTIONS

Top: 5–15 min
Heart: 15–60 min
Base: 1–4 hours

Skin feels:
cool, clean, faintly citrus,
bright.

THE GRANDPA / NICE ACCORD

A PERSONAL COMPOSITE

4711 • Mediterranean seawater road tar • turpentine • marble hotel linen • old wood • ice cream

ACQUISITION / USE

- ☒ OWNED ☒ WORE ☐ SAMPLED ☐ REJECTED ☐ WANT

WHEN & WHERE

Childhood—Present
Europe with Grandpa
Tennis • Hotels • Coast

OCCASIONS

Travel • Family • Memory
Rarely worn now.
Mostly kept.

PROVENANCE

PEOPLE, PLACES & PERIODS

People: Grandpa

Places: Nice, France
Lucerne, Switzerland
London, England (The Dorchester)
Lugano, Switzerland
Monte Carlo, Monaco

Period: c. age 12

Memory Type: Travel • Family • Sensory Imprint

ASSOCIATED MEMORIES (KEY IMAGES)

- Tennis with Grandpa
- White bucket hat
- Hotel lobbies
- Swimming in Nice
- Tar on my feet
- Kindness of the hotel man
- Gilded chair
- Fish and giggles
- Ice-cream boats
- Jacques Cousteau museum
- Lunch in Monte Carlo

FIELD REMARKS

Not worn often now. Kept as a vial of memory.
When I open it, I am twelve again.
That lobby. That sea. That chair.
And Grandpa, always.

— 14 —

What interests me now is how little the fragrance behaves like the fragrances I eventually learned to covet.

It isn't enormous.

It doesn't announce wealth or sex or sophistication.

It doesn't seem particularly interested in becoming anybody.

It arrives.

It refreshes.

It disappears.

Maybe that's part of why the memory has lasted longer than the fragrance ever could.

I can dissect it now if I want to.

Bergamot.

Lemon.

Orange.

Lavender.

Rosemary.

Neroli.

Petitgrain.

The taxonomy is useful, particularly for what we're doing here.

But that's not what I smell first.

I smell Grandpa.

And that creates one of the rules of this field guide that no amount of note-taking will solve:

Sometimes the ingredients remain perfectly distinct, and sometimes memory overwhelms the formula entirely.

Both are true.

I require contradiction.

*

FIELD NOTES - CITRUS / GREEN

This is the territory I want to explore next: fragrances where citrus retains its peel, its bitterness, its leaves, and preferably some evidence that the fruit once grew on something.

The most promising specimens should not merely smell fresh.

Fresh is too broad.

I want definition:

Citrus against herbs.

Blossom against leaf.

Brightness against something dry, bitter, mineral, or green.

The question isn't whether they smell like an orange.

I want to know whether any of them can give me the tree.

Chapter II

Spice, Amber, Resin, Tobacco and Leather

Resin, Spice, Tobacco & Leather

PLATE 002

SPECIMEN STUDY

RESIN, SPICE, TOBACCO & LEATHER

THE WARMTH AND WEIGHT OF MEMORY

Cinnamomum verum
CINNAMON

AMBER
Labdanum resin

BENZOIN
Styrax tonkinensis

MYRRH
Commiphora myrrha

FRANKINCENSE
Boswellia carterii

Pogostemon cablin
PATCHOULI

CINNAMON BARK
Cinnamomum verum

CLOVE
Syzygium aromaticum

NUTMEG
Myristica fragrans

CARDAMOM
Elettaria cardamomum

BLACK PEPPER
Piper nigrum

TOBACCO LEAF
Nicotiana tabacum

ORRIS ROOT
Iris pallida

LEATHER ACCORD
Tanned hide

SANDALWOOD
Santalum album

VETIVER
Vetiveria zizanioides

TONKA BEAN
Dipteryx odorata

CEDARWOOD
Cedrus atlantica

NOTES

These materials linger.
They speak of warmth, of skin, of interiors.
They can comfort. They can conceal.
They are the weight in the base,
the part that stays when the room is left.

ACCORDS

Warm Spicy — Cinnamon, Clove, Nutmeg, Cardamom, Pepper
Resinous — Amber, Benzoin, Myrrh, Frankincense, Labdanum
Tobacco — Tobacco Leaf, Tonka Bean, Leather
Woody Balsamic — Sandalwood, Vetiver, Cedarwood, Patchouli, Orris

CINNAMON

CLOVE

CARDAMOM

NUTMEG

PEPPER

PATCHOULI

LABDANUM

TOBACCO

LEATHER

Some fragrances are attractive because they are beautiful.

Others are attractive because they suggest a life.

This category has always been dangerous for me.

Spice. Amber. Resin. Tobacco. Leather.

These are not neutral materials.

They imply something.

A room.

A chair.

A jacket.

A person who has already lived a little.

They carry history.

I have always been drawn to things that feel touched by time.

Not old.

Not worn out.

Experienced.

A brand-new leather jacket is interesting.

A leather jacket that has been everywhere is something else.

The material remembers.

That is what I am looking for.

*

GEO. F. TRUMPER MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough was one of those fragrances that seemed to arrive before I had words for what I was looking for.

Warm.

Dry.

Comfortable.

Human.

It wasn't trying to impress anyone.

It wasn't a performance.

It was a room after the guests had left.

A shower.

Sunlight coming through the window.

Skin with skin.

An afternoon with nowhere else we particularly needed to be.

The attraction was never just the fragrance.

It was the possibility of a moment.

A fragrance can become an invitation to a life you imagine yourself living.

That is part of its power.

And part of its danger.

Because sometimes we are not attracted to the fragrance itself.

We are attracted to the person we become while wearing it.

Marlborough

MARLBOROUGH

23

THE PERSONAL FIELD GUIDES

FRAGRANCE • SPECIMEN NO. 007

SPECIMEN 007

MARLBOROUGH

Geo. F. Trumper
Eau de Cologne

CLASSIFICATION:

Woody Aromatic

LAUNCH YEAR:

1877

ACCORDS:

- Aromatic
- Fresh Spicy
- Woody
- Lavender
- Herbal
- Rose

CHARACTER:

A traditional English cologne with quiet confidence. Marlborough carries the feeling of a freshly pressed shirt, polished wood, and a well-kept private room. Lavender brings a clean aromatic presence, geranium adds a refined floral character, and cedar leaves a dry, composed finish. Classic without being distant. Masculine without needing to announce itself.

ASSOCIATED PLANTS & MATERIALS

FRAGRANCE NOTES (from Fragrantica)

Top Notes:	Heart Notes:	Base Notes:
Lavender Geranium	Lavender Geranium	Cedar

Source: Fragrantica/ourn. Fragrantica.com – Geo. F. Trumper Marlborough Cologne

SCENE STUDY: SUNLIGHT AFTER THE SHOWER

ASSOCIATED OBJECTS

FIELD NARRATIVE

Hot water.
Steam on the mirror.
The room held quiet.
You. Me.
Sunlight moved across the bed.
It didn't need a name.
It only needed time.

Marlborough was there.
Warm. Close. Certain.

PROVENANCE

PLACE: Los Angeles

PERIOD: Early 2000s

MEMORY TYPE:

Intimacy • Afternoon • Private

EXTRACTIONS

Top: 5–15 min
Heart: 15–60 min
Base: 1–4 hours

Skin feels:
clean, calm,
close, composed.

KEY MEMORIES

- Shower and sunlight
- Skin with skin
- A room, an afternoon
- Nowhere else needed to be

Source: MARLBOROUGH_LOCKED_MASTER.png - Page-level scaling only; internal pixels unchanged

*

CHANEL POUR MONSIEUR

Some fragrances are about desire.

Others are about identity.

Chanel Pour Monsieur belongs to the second category.

It is controlled.

Precise.

Elegant without needing to announce elegance.

It suggested something I wanted before I understood how to become it.

Craft.

Confidence.

A certain kind of restraint.

The person who knew exactly what he was doing.

At the time, I didn't.

But perhaps that is why fragrance matters.

It can be a sketch of a future self.

Not a costume.

A possibility.

*

THE QUESTION

There was a question underneath all of this.

Not:

What do I want to smell like?

The deeper question was:

Who am I becoming?

A fragrance is often a clue before it is an answer.

Sometimes we choose something because it reflects who we are.

Sometimes because it reflects who we hope to become.

The difference is almost impossible to see while you are living it.

*

FIELD NOTES - SPICE / AMBER / RESIN / TOBACCO / LEATHER

These materials interest me because they carry evidence.

They suggest contact.

Heat.

Time.

Human presence.

The best versions do not smell like a collection of expensive ingredients.

They smell lived in.

The question is not:

"Does this smell luxurious?"

The question is:

"Who has been here?"

*

COOL WATER - WHAT?

Some fragrances are about arrival.

Others are about possibility.

Cool Water belongs to possibility.

I was young, working in high-end retail, surrounded every day by people buying versions of themselves.

Clothes.

Shoes.

Watches.

Fragrance.

The next thing.

I didn't know what my next thing was.

But I knew there was one.

Something was next. Anything.

Cool Water asked:

What?

And I didn't have an answer.

Yet.

That question matters because becoming is rarely a straight line.

At that age, I thought the future was something waiting for me somewhere else.

A different place.

A different version of myself.

A different life.

I didn't understand yet that becoming is not something you arrive at.

It is something you participate in.

*

CHANEL - WHY?

If Cool Water was the question, Chanel was the beginning of the answer.

Not because it told me who to become.

Because it suggested that there was a reason behind the search.

Why this?

Why beauty?

Why craft?

Why refinement?

Why do some things matter to us when they appear, at first glance, to be unnecessary?

A fragrance is unnecessary.

That is part of its power.

Nobody needs one.

Which means every choice is personal.

The materials.

The proportions.

The restraint.

The excess.

The decision to put something invisible on your skin and carry it into the world.

That is not utility.

That is expression.

*

THE TRANSITION

For a long time, I thought fragrance was something I put on.

Looking back, I'm not so sure.

Sometimes I chose a fragrance because it seemed to belong to the person I already was.

More often, I think I chose one because it belonged to someone I was searching for.

That distinction is difficult to see while you're living it.

At fourteen, eighteen, twenty-four, thirty-four, you don't necessarily know which parts of yourself are permanent and which are scaffolding.

You try things on.

Clothes.

Music.

Girls.

Ambition.

Sophistication.

Recklessness.

Cologne.

Some fit.

Some don't.

Some fit until they don't.

And every once in a while, something you thought was costume turns out to have been you all along.

Chapter III

Rain, Stone, Forest, Earth and River

Petrichor

PLATE III — PETRICHOR

Rain on dry ground · wet stone · soil · moss · geosmin

FIELD SECTION

GEOSMIN — FIELD CHEMISTRY MARK

SPECIMEN 03-C / THE FIRST RAIN IS A CHEMICAL EVENT AND A MEMORY.

Some smells are memories.
Others are places.
The difference is subtle.
A memory belongs to you.
A place exists whether you are there or not.
The fragrances I love in this category sit between those two things.
They are not recreations.
They are reminders.
Wet stone.
Moss.
Damp earth.
Cold wood.
River water.
The smell of a landscape after it has changed.
That is what interests me.
The moment after.
The transition.
The interval.
The moment when something familiar becomes something else.
The chimera.

*

THE MERCED

I have fished the Merced countless times.
Alone.
With friends.
With their families.
But the days that matter most are the days I spend every year, on the Merced, with Will.
There is something I am able to give him there that I didn't have with a father myself.
I had it with Grandpa.

Time together.

An experience handed from one person to another.

And every once in a while, I get to watch Will love something I love--even if only for a moment.

That's enough.

The river gives me solitude and companionship at the same time.

Peace and adventure.

Memory and fatherhood.

I suppose it appeals to all the noble parts of me, of all of us.

*

I caught the trout alone, a mile or so upstream, at the bend.

The fish stays on my phone.

A screensaver remembrance.

But it doesn't stay with me.

It's the place.

Damp bark.

Mist.

Pine needles underfoot.

Cold river water.

Wet granite.

Those smooth, water-worn rocks splashed by the Merced, warming in the sun, splashed again.

And splashed again.

*

River Stone

FIELD FIGURE — RIVER STONE

Cold water · granite · pine shade · mist · sun-warmed earth

SPECIMEN R-01 / WATER DOES NOT NEED TO SMELL 'AQUATIC.'

THE INTERVAL

The smell is often strongest at the transition--the moment dry becomes wet, or wet begins to warm again.

That interval may be the most powerful of all: the moment one thing becomes another, when both are briefly present at once.

The chimera.

*

HACIVAT - RECOGNITION

I didn't understand Hacivat at first.

I thought I disliked it.

Until I discovered its voice and suddenly understood what it was trying to say to me.

Moss.

Dampness.

Wet stone.

Mineral air.

I couldn't explain why I was suddenly drawn to a fragrance I'd initially resisted.

Writing this book finally gave me an answer I hadn't been looking for.

Maybe I've been smelling the Merced in Hacivat all along.

That isn't a technical explanation.

It doesn't need to be.

The river may not explain the formula.

It explains me.

I just had to remember it first.

*

FIELD NOTES - PETRICHOR / MINERAL

This is where I want the search to stay close to the source.

Wet stone.

Moss.

Damp earth.

Cold wood.

River water.

Concrete after rain.

Dry ground releasing itself when water finally hits.

These are not abstractions to me.

They are reference points.

Petrichor may be the purest version of that experiment.

I know what wet granite smells like beside the Merced.

I know what hot concrete smells like when the first rain hits.

I know damp bark, shaded forest, dust turning dark with water.

I don't need a fragrance to reproduce any of those things perfectly.

But I need to recognize the relationship.

The mineral against the green.

The dry against the wet.

The cool stone against the sun warming it.

The intervals.

If I can find them, I'll listen.

If it all collapses into something "aquatic" or "green," I'm out.

Chapter IV

Smoke, Garage, Ink, Tar and Other Wildcards

The Garage

FIELD FIGURE — THE GARAGE

Concrete · stored wood · oil · rubber · dust · a closed drawer

SPECIMEN G-01 / A DARK GARAGE IS AN ACCIDENTAL PERFUME LABORATORY.

WOOD · OIL · RUBBER · DUST · CONCRETE · OLD METAL

Some smells we love aren't supposed to smell good.

Gasoline.

A hot garage.

Rubber.

Machine oil.

Tar.

Old books.

The basement.

Dust heating on something electrical.

Camphor.

Fresh paint.

The inside of a tool drawer.

An unlucky skunk.

I smell most everything that comes in front of me.

I'll pick it up and smell it.

Out of curiosity.

Or clarity.

Not because I necessarily want to wear it, eat it or kick it.

I just want to know what it is.

How it smells is what it is.

Hopefully.

✱

I smell almost everything that comes in front of me.

Not because I necessarily want to wear it.

I want to know what's in there.

A garage is never just "garage."

There is concrete beneath it.

Rubber.

Oil.

Metal.

Dust.

Cardboard.

Maybe gasoline.

Heat changes all of them.

So does cold.

Open the door after the cars have been gone all night and it's one place.

Pull a warm car inside and close the door and it's another.

The components remain recognizable, but their relationships change.

That's interesting to me.

✧

"Smoky" isn't enough.

What burned?

Wood smoke has structure.

Cigarette smoke has history.

An extinguished candle has that brief black thread rising from the wick.

Electrical heat has something slightly alarming in it.

Charred meat is another thing entirely.

I want the noun behind the adjective.

✧

The same is true of leather, ink, tar, rubber, pencil shavings and dust.

These aren't conventional perfume fantasies for me.

They're smells I already know from somewhere else.

Which makes this the natural habitat of The Test.

But it's also where The Challenge gets loose:

I dare you. Chances are I won't like you, but hell, I'm game. Let's get weird.

Because there should be things in this book I smell for no better reason than wanting to find out what happens.

Not every experiment needs to end with a bottle.

Some should end with:

Absolutely not.

And still have been worth doing.

Objects of Smell

PLATE IV — OBJECTS OF SMELL

Tool drawer · old book · pencil shavings · machine oil · leather · rubber · solvent

A. TOOL DRAWER / HAND TOOLS

B. OLD BOOK / DUST / PAPER

C. MACHINE OIL

D. PENCIL / SHAVINGS

E. WORN LEATHER

F. RUBBER

G. SOLVENT BOTTLE

SPECIMEN 04-D / NOT NOTES, REFERENCES.

Chapter V

Becoming

Becoming

PRODUCTION PLACEHOLDER

No separate approved production source in corrected package; contact sheet is inventory only.

No contact-sheet thumbnail or generated substitute used.

For a long time, I thought fragrance was something I put on.

Looking back, I'm not so sure.

Sometimes I chose a fragrance because it seemed to belong to the person I already was.

More often, I think I chose one because it belonged to someone I was searching for.

That distinction is difficult to see while you're living it.

At fourteen, eighteen, twenty-four, thirty-four, you don't necessarily know which parts of yourself are permanent and which are scaffolding.

You try things on.

Clothes.

Music.

Girls.

Ambition.

Sophistication.

Recklessness.

Cologne.

Some fit.

Some don't.

Some fit until they don't.

And every once in a while, something you thought was costume turns out to have been you all along.

*

ANAÏS ANAÏS - TIME SUSPENDED

Some fragrances don't return a person or a place.

They transport.

Anaïs Anaïs belongs to that strange interval when childhood had ended but adulthood hadn't quite begun.

Everything felt temporary and permanent at the same time.

Girls.

Cars.

Music.

Bedrooms.

Whatever happened on Friday night.

You don't know yet which memories will survive.

You certainly don't know what they'll smell like.

*

OBSESSION - ALMOST ADULT

Obsession smelled like adulthood before I understood adulthood.

It was darker.

Louder.

Sexual.

Certain of itself.

Searching for itself.

Like a shark that can't stop swimming.

Maybe that was the appeal.

*

POISON - DANGER AND ANTICIPATION

Poison didn't whisper.

I could smell her before she reached me.

And I loved it.

There was something thrilling about that.

A fragrance entering the room before the person wearing it.

Announcement.

Warning.

Invitation.

At that age, those things weren't necessarily distinguishable.

*

HERMÈS EAU D'ORANGE VERTE - INEVITABILITY

By my early thirties, some of the questions had changed.
I was singing well.
Not merely discovering that I had a voice, but learning how to use it.
The gift had become work, and the work had become craft.
Amy and I had just met.
Everything felt fresh.
Sex.
Travel.
Music.
The exhilaration of being inside a life that still seemed to be arriving.
Bear Valley belongs to that period for me.
What had once felt distant was suddenly close enough to inhabit.

*

Cool Water had asked:
What?
Chanel had asked:
Why?
Hermès seemed to answer both.
This.
Music.
Love.
Travel.
The beginnings of family.
A life that no longer felt borrowed or rehearsed.
And: Inevitability.
Not destiny.
That word feels too neat, too preordained.
Inevitability is different.
Looking backward, the ingredients were already there.
The music.

The appetite.

The searching.

The mistakes.

The willingness to start over.

Amy.

Separate notes, for a long time.

Then suddenly, the major third.

A perfect fourth.

I don't think I understood any of that while I was living it.

I just knew I was singing well.

I knew Amy was exciting.

I knew the air felt good.

And I knew, maybe for the first time, that I was not standing outside the life I wanted.

I was in it.

Chapter VI

The Best of Fire

By this point, I should have myself figured out.

I need the pieces.

I want definition.

Intervals.

Dissonance.

Suspension.

Resolution.

I want to know where one thing ends and another begins.

I need the relationships.

The tension.

The architecture.

The Best of Fire / BR540

PRODUCTION PLACEHOLDER

No separate approved production source in corrected package; placed as isolated interruption before BR540.

No contact-sheet thumbnail or generated substitute used.

And then there is Baccarat Rouge 540.
The fragrance that should not fit.
The one that violates my own expectations.
The Outlier.

✧

You shouldn't be here.
But here you are.
Apparently I don't know myself as well as I thought.

✧

I didn't love it immediately.
In fact, I wasn't entirely sure what I was smelling.
And that should have been the end of it.
It wasn't.
I kept returning to it.
That bothered me a little.
Because Baccarat Rouge 540 does not give me the pieces in the way I usually demand them.
I can't neatly pull it apart.
I can't point to each component.
I can't admire the spaces between individual materials because something else is happening.
Something larger.
Something less obedient.

✧

The fire, without having to burn everything and everyone down to the ground.
Maybe that's what BR540 gives me.
It's the elixir of youth.
With hindsight.
And a dash of possibility.

✧

But here it is.

Something I cannot separate.

Something I cannot fully explain.

Something I want anyway.

It's consonance, suspension, and a false cadence.

And yet, in this moment, I love it.

Chapter VII

Green Water

Some fragrances announce themselves.

Others reveal themselves.

Slowly.

Eventually you realize they have been there all along.

Green Water belongs to the second category.

I didn't discover it in a dramatic moment.

There was no lightning bolt.

No instant recognition.

No story of being stopped in my tracks.

It arrived differently.

Quietly.

Like the best things often do.

By the time Green Water became important to me, I was no longer searching only for who I might become.

I was living inside the answer.

Amy.

Will.

Maddie.

The house.

The routines.

The ordinary moments that become extraordinary only after you realize they were the moments.

✱

Green Water smells like durability.

Not permanence.

Nothing is permanent.

Durability.

The ability to change and still remain yourself.

That may be why it has lasted for me.

It doesn't demand attention.

It doesn't try to become the center of the room.

It doesn't need to announce sophistication, danger, wealth, or desire.

It simply belongs.

✱

Green Water

SPECIMEN NO. 07

GREEN WATER

Jacques Fath
PARIS

EAU DE SPORT TONIFIANTE
Tonic Sport Splash

AROMATIC GREEN FRAGRANCE FOR MEN

LAUNCHED 1993

PERFUMER: VINCENT ROUBERT

JF

18

ASSOCIATED PLANTS & MATERIALS

Lime
Citrus aurantifolia

Petitgrain
Citrus aurantium
var. amara

Basil
Ocimum basilicum

Lemon
Citrus limon

Bergamot
Citrus bergamia

Mandarin Orange
Citrus reticulata

Tangerine
Citrus tangerina

Caraway
Carum carvi

Carrot Daucus carota seeds

Ginger
Zingiber officinale

Jasmine
Jasminum grandiflorum

Lily-of-the-Valley
Convallaria majalis

Oakmoss
Evernia prunastri

Musk
Musk accord

Amber
Amber accord

FRAGRANCE AATIFACT

BEAR VALLEY MUSIC FESTIVAL

AMY

FIELD NARRATIVE

Green Water was the smell of possibility.
Bear Valley was our first trip away together.
We were there to work, but it was the late nights, and the kind of freedom that felt endless when you're young.
Fresh and green like the mountain air.
We fell in love.
Life kept building.
And before we knew it,
there were two more reasons to keep showing up.
We built a life. Made a home.
Green Water was there.
It still is.

HOME

WILL AND MADDIE

PROVENANCE

PEOPLE:
Amy Will Maddie

PLACE: Bear Valley
Home

MEMORY TYPE
Family • Music • Beginning

NOTES
A fresh green splash that became the scent of a turning point.
Family. Music. Home.
All part of the same story.

THE PERSONAL ARCHIVE RECORD

FIELD GUIDE

Source: GREEN_WATER_LOCKED_MASTER.jpeg - Page-level scaling only; internal pixels unchanged

INTERIM FLOWED PROOF - TEMP PAGE 47

THE GARDEN

There is a difference between a garden and a collection of beautiful plants.

A garden has continuity.

It has seasons.

Growth.

Maintenance.

Things that need tending.

Every garden needs a gardener.

For a long time, I wanted to be the garden.

I wanted to be the thing that was discovered.

The thing that inspired.

The thing that someone else cared for.

Age has changed that.

Now I understand the privilege of being the gardener.

To tend something.

To show up.

To create conditions where something else can grow.

That may be the greatest transformation of my life.

Not becoming someone new.

Becoming someone responsible for what I already loved.

*

Green Water is not a fragrance of arrival.

It is a fragrance of stewardship.

*

FIELD NOTES - GREEN / CITRUS / LIFE

The green fragrances I return to are not merely fresh.

Fresh is easy.

I want living things.

Leaf.

Stem.

Sap.

Water.

Citrus peel.

Rain.

Growth.

I want the feeling of something continuing.

The opposite of nostalgia is not forgetting.

It is cultivation.

And maybe that is why this fragrance belongs here.

Not because it reminds me of who I was.

Because it reminds me of what I was, who I am, and where I hope to go.

Chapter VIII

In Parallel

The strange thing about inheritance is that it rarely arrives in the form we expect.

Sometimes it is a name.

Sometimes it is a watch, a photograph, a recipe, a story.

Sometimes it is a smell.

When Will became interested in cologne, I thought I was introducing him to something I loved.

I was.

But not only that.

He was introducing me to something I had misplaced.

My old bottles.

My old curiosity.

My willingness to explore something simply because it interested me.

The timing still feels impossible.

I had just thrown away most of the collection I had built since I was his age.

Then he began building one of his own.

A father and son, separated by decades, standing at the same doorway.

Not the same doorway.

A parallel one.

*

There is something strange about watching your child discover something that once belonged to you.

Not because it proves anything.

Not because it means you passed something down exactly as intended.

But because it reminds you that everything we love is borrowed for a while.

A fragrance.

A song.

A river.

A story.

Eventually, it belongs to someone else.

That is the beautiful and uncomfortable thing about inheritance.

You don't get to keep it.

You get to participate in its continuation.

✱

When Will smells a fragrance, I don't want him to smell what I smell.

That would defeat the purpose.

I don't want him to become a smaller version of me.

I want him to find his own intervals.

His own dissonance.

His own resolutions.

The best thing I can give him is not my answer.

It is permission to search.

✱

He likes smooth.

I like prickly.

He wants consonance.

I need dissonance.

He thrives on constancy.

I need a dash of variety.

We move together, but in parallel.

We are the interval.

Consonant and perfect.

For now.

✱

In Parallel

SPREAD PLACEHOLDER - LEFT PAGE

No actual In Parallel source composition supplied; spread suitability requires Creative Director review.

Special-format source missing; spread treatment reserved for Creative Director review.

In Parallel

SPREAD PLACEHOLDER - RIGHT PAGE

No actual In Parallel source composition
supplied; spread suitability requires Creative Director review.

Special-format source missing; spread treatment reserved for Creative Director review.

Sometimes Will will ask me what I think.
I try to answer honestly.
Not as a judge.
Not as someone who already knows.
Just as someone who has smelled a lot of things and is still learning.
I tell him what I notice.
The smoothness.
The balance.
The parts that come together easily.
And sometimes I tell him what I would change.
The edge I want.
The roughness.
The thing that catches.
He listens.
Sometimes he agrees.
Sometimes he doesn't.
That's the point.
The fragrance does not need us to agree.
It only needs us to pay attention.

*

I thought I was making a field guide for fragrances.
Then I realized I was making a field guide for attention.
How to notice.
How to separate.
How to remember.
How to recognize something before it disappears.
Will didn't bring me back to who I was.
He reminded me that I was never finished becoming.
And maybe that is the final parallel:
I am still searching.
So is he.

Different paths.

Same curiosity.

Coda

Who Am I Becoming?

I used to think becoming meant arriving.

Finding the thing.

Finding the person.

Finding the version of myself that finally made sense.

I don't think that anymore.

Becoming is not arrival.

It is attention.

It is noticing what remains.

What changes.

What returns.

A fragrance disappears almost immediately after you smell it.

And yet somehow it can stay with you for decades.

A grandfather.

A river.

A love.

A child.

A moment when everything was still possible.

Maybe that is what I have been collecting all along.

Not bottles.

Not notes.

Intervals.

The spaces between things.

The places where one thing becomes another.

Where memory becomes meaning.

Where experience becomes wisdom.

Where a father and son stand beside each other, moving in parallel.

Where fire becomes warmth.

Where water becomes life.

Where a smell becomes a story.

And where, for now, we are still becoming.

Specimen Register

PRODUCTION PLACEHOLDER

No separate approved production source/content supplied for functional register plate.

No contact-sheet thumbnail or generated substitute used.

The Specimen Register

Observations in evolution

The narrative ends.

The field work continues.

A fragrance is not a verdict.

It is an encounter.

This register exists to record the relationship.

Not to freeze it.

A first impression is not the truth.

It is the first observation.

A fragrance may change.

So may the person smelling it.

The specimen evolves.

The observer evolves.

The record remains open.

SPECIMEN ENTRY

FRAGRANCE

HOUSE

YEAR / ERA

*

ENCOUNTER

- [] THE LIGHTNING BOLT
- [] THE COURTSHIP
- [] THE CHALLENGE
- [] THE TEST

[] THE OUTLIER

✱

FIRST ENCOUNTER

Date:

Place:

Weather:

Skin:

Mood:

✱

THE PIECES

What do I smell?

Materials.

Ingredients.

Associations.

The things I can separate.

✱

THE INTERVALS

Where is the relationship?

Where is the consonance?

Where is the dissonance?

Where is the suspension?

Where is the resolution?

*

THE MEMORY

What does this return?

A person.

A place.

A moment.

A version of myself.

*

EVOLUTION

First:

Now:

Next:

*

FINAL FIELD NOTE

Not a rating.

Not a verdict.

A moment.

Initial Specimens

The following fragrances appear throughout the narrative.

They are not ranked.

They are not scored.

They are the first entries in an ongoing field guide.

HOUSE

Mäurer & Wirtz

ENCOUNTER

THE TEST

FAMILY

Citrus / Herbal / Fresh

*

THE PIECES

Bergamot.

Lemon.

Orange.

Lavender.

Rosemary.

Neroli.

Petitgrain.

*

THE MEMORY

Grandpa.

Fishing.

Time.

Attention.

Inclusion.

*

FIELD NOTE

Sometimes the ingredients remain perfectly distinct.

Sometimes memory overwhelms the formula entirely.

Both are true.

GEO. F. TRUMPER MARLBOROUGH

ENCOUNTER

THE COURTSHIP

FAMILY

Tobacco / Leather / Warm

*

THE PIECES

*

THE MEMORY

A shower.

Sunlight coming through the window.

Skin with skin.

An afternoon with nowhere else we particularly needed to be.

*

FIELD NOTE

A fragrance can become an invitation to a life you imagine yourself living.

CHANEL POUR MONSIEUR

ENCOUNTER

THE COURTSHIP

FAMILY

Citrus / Woods / Sophistication

*

THE PIECES

*

THE MEMORY

Craft.

Confidence.

The person I was constructing.

*

FIELD NOTE

A fragrance can be a sketch of a future self.

Not a costume.

A possibility.

COOL WATER

ENCOUNTER

THE COURTSHIP

FAMILY

Fresh / Aquatic / Green

*

THE MEMORY

Possibility.

A doorway.

Something was next.

Anything.

*

FIELD NOTE

What?

HACIVAT

ENCOUNTER

THE CHALLENGE

FAMILY

Green / Moss / Mineral

*

THE PIECES

Moss.

Dampness.

Wet stone.

Mineral air.

*

THE MEMORY

The Merced.

Granite.

River.

Mist.

*

FIELD NOTE

The river may not explain the formula.

It explains me.

I just had to remember it first.

BACCARAT ROUGE 540

ENCOUNTER

THE OUTLIER

FAMILY

Amber / Woody / Sweet

*

THE PIECES

*

THE MEMORY

Fire.

Youth.

Possibility.

*

FIELD NOTE

You shouldn't be here.

But here you are.

Apparently I don't know myself as well as I thought.

GREEN WATER

ENCOUNTER

THE COURTSHIP

FAMILY

Citrus / Green / Fresh

*

THE MEMORY

Amy.

Will.

Maddie.

Garden.

Continuity.

*

FIELD NOTE

Not because it reminds me of who I was.

Because it reminds me of what I was, who I am, and where I hope to go.

Undiscovered Specimens

The next fragrance has not been discovered yet.

The next memory has not happened yet.

The field guide remains open.

*

SPECIMEN

UNKNOWN

ENCOUNTER

UNKNOWN

DATE

UNKNOWN

STATUS

BECOMING

Fragrance Index

A working alphabetical index of fragrances included in Field Guide No. 01. Add page references after final Vellum pagination.

4711 Acqua Colonia Blood Orange & Basil

4711 Acqua Colonia Lemon & Ginger

4711 Original

Acqua di Parma Colonia

Acqua di Parma Colonia Essenza

Aesop Eidesis

Aesop Hwyl

Akro Ink

Akro Smoke

Amouage Bracken Man

Amouage Epic Man

Amouage Journey Man

Amouage Jubilation XXV Man

Amouage Memoir Man

Amouage Opus VII Reckless Leather

Amouage Portrayal Man

Andrea Maack Coven

Apoteker Tepe After the Flood

Apoteker Tepe Holy Mountain

Apoteker Tepe The Peradam

Aramis Classic

Aramis Devin

Aramis Havana

Atelier Cologne Cédrat Enivrant

Atelier Cologne Orange Sanguine

Azzaro The Most Wanted Parfum

Azzaro Visit

Azzaro Wanted by Night
BeauFort London Coeur de Noir
BeauFort London Iron Duke
BeauFort London Rake & Ruin
BeauFort London Terror & Magnificence
BeauFort London Tonnerre
BeauFort London Vi Et Armis
Bentley for Men Absolute
Bon Parfumeur 003
Boucheron Jaipur Homme EDP
Boucheron Jaipur Homme EDT
Boucheron Pour Homme EDP
Calvin Klein Obsession for Men
Caron Le 3e Homme
Caron Yatagan
Cartier Déclaration EDT
Cartier Déclaration Haute Fraîcheur
CB I Hate Perfume Black March
CB I Hate Perfume Burning Leaves
CB I Hate Perfume Wet Pavement London
CB I Hate Perfume Wild Hunt
Chanel Antaeus
Chanel Eau de Cologne Les Exclusifs
Chanel Pour Monsieur EDT
Comme des Garçons 2 Man
Comme des Garçons Avignon
Comme des Garçons Black
Comme des Garçons Black EDT
Comme des Garçons Blackpepper
Comme des Garçons Garage
Comme des Garçons Hinoki

Comme des Garçons Kyoto
Comme des Garçons Odeur 53
Comme des Garçons Odeur 71
Comme des Garçons Tar
Comme des Garçons Wonderoud
Comme des Garçons Wonderwood
Comme des Garçons Zagorsk
Costume National Homme
Costume National Soul
D.R. Harris Marlborough
D.R. Harris Windsor
D.S. & Durga Bowmakers
D.S. & Durga Cowboy Grass
D.S. & Durga Mississippi Medicine
D.S. & Durga Radio Bombay
D.S. & Durga Steamed Rainbow
Dana English Leather
Davidoff Cool Water
Davidoff Zino
Demeter Library
Demeter Petrichor
Demeter Thunderstorm
Dior Eau Sauvage EDT
Dior Eau Sauvage Parfum
Dior Fahrenheit EDT
Dior Fahrenheit Le Parfum
Dior Fahrenheit Parfum
Diptyque Eau des Sens EDT
Diptyque Tam Dao EDT
Diptyque Vetyverio EDT
Dunhill Amalfi Citrus

Dunhill Edition
Eau de Rochas Homme
Emporio Armani Stronger With You Intensely
Encre Indigo
Encre Noire Sport
Essential Parfums Orange X Santal
Etat Libre d'Orange Hermann à mes Côtés
Ffern Autumn seasonal compositions
Ffern Spring seasonal compositions
Fischersund Flotholt
Fischersund No. 23
Fischersund No. 54
Floris Elite
Floris JF
Floris No. 89
Floris Santal
Frédéric Malle Bigarade Concentrée
Fzotic Lampblack
Fzotic Ummagumma
Fzotic Vetiverissimo
Geo. F. Trumper Extract of Limes
Geo. F. Trumper Portugal
Geo. F. Trumper Spanish Leather
Goutal Eau du Sud
Goutal Eau d'Hadrien
Gucci Guilty Absolute
Gucci Mémoire d'une Odeur
Guerlain Cologne du Parfumeur
Guerlain Habit Rouge EDT
Guerlain Heritage EDT
Guerlain Héritage EDP

Guerlain L'Instant de Guerlain Pour Homme EDP
Guerlain Vetiver EDT
Guerlain Vetiver Parfum
Haeckels Pegwell Bay
Heeley Menthe Fraîche
Heeley Note de Yuzu
Hermès Bel Ami
Hermès Bel Ami Vetiver
Hermès Concentré d'Orange Verte
Hermès Eau de Citron Noir
Hermès Eau de Pamplemousse Rose
Hermès Eau d'Orange Verte
Hermès Rocabar
Hermès Un Jardin en Méditerranée
Histoires de Parfums 1899 Hemingway
Imaginary Authors A City on Fire
Imaginary Authors Every Storm a Serenade Imaginary Authors The Cobra and the Canary
Issey Miyake L'Eau Bleue d'Issey Pour Homme
Jacques Fath Green Water
January Scent Project Burvuvu
January Scent Project Eiderantler
John Varvatos Dark Rebel Rider
John Varvatos Vintage
Jorum Studio Arborist
Jorum Studio Gorseland
Kerosene Broken Theories
Kerosene Copper Skies
Knize Ten
Laboratorio Olfattivo Arancia Rossa
Lagerfeld Classic

Lalique Encre Noire
Lalique Encre Noire Sport
Lalique Encre Noire à L'Extrême
Lalique Equus EDP
Lalique Ombre Noire
Le Labo Baie 19
Loewe 7 Anónimo
L'Artisan Parfumeur Fou d'Absinthe
L'Artisan Parfumeur Passage d'Enfer
L'Artisan Parfumeur Timbuktu
L'Occitane Verbena EDT
Maison Alhambra The Tux
Maison Crivelli Citrus Batikanga
Marc-Antoine Barrois B683
Marc-Antoine Barrois Ganymede
Memo African Leather
Memo Irish Leather
Memo Russian Leather
MFK Baccarat Rouge 540 EDP
Miller Harris Le Pamplemousse
Naomi Goodsir Bois d'Ascèse
Naomi Goodsir Corpus Equus
Nasomatto Duro
Nicolai Cap Nérolí
Nicolai Cédral Intense
Nicolai Eau de Yuzu
Nishane Hacivat
Olympic Orchids Olympic Rainforest
Olympic Orchids Salamanca
Olympic Orchids Woodcut
Ormonde Jayne Ormonde Man

Orto Parisi Cuoium
Orto Parisi Terroni
Papillon Anubis
Parfum d'Empire Azemour Les Orangers
Parfums de Marly Carlisle
Parfums de Marly Greenley
Parfums de Marly Herod
Parfums de Marly Layton
Penhaligon's Halfeti
Penhaligon's Sartorial
Perris Monte Carlo Cedro di Diamante
Pineward Bindebole
Pineward Boreal
Pineward Brokilän
Pineward Eldritch
Pineward Fanghorn II
Pineward Murkwood
Pineward Oxylus
Pineward White Fir
Polo Green
Profumum Roma Acqua Viva
Puig Agua Brava
Ralph Lauren Safari for Men
Rochas Moustache EDP
Roger & Gallet Jean Marie Farina
Rogue Perfumery Fougère L'Aube
Rogue Perfumery Mousse Illuminee
Rogue Perfumery Targhee Forest
Royall Bay Rhum
Salvador Dali Pour Homme
Serge Lutens Ambre Sultan

Serge Lutens Chergui
Serge Lutens Chêne
Serge Lutens Fille en Aiguilles
Tauer Au Coeur du Désert
Tauer Lonestar Memories
Tauer L'Air du Désert Marocain
Terre d'Hermès Eau Givrée
Terre d'Hermès EDT
Terre d'Hermès Parfum
Tom Ford Beau de Jour
Tom Ford Grey Vetiver EDP
Tom Ford Ombre Leather
Tom Ford Tobacco Oud
Tom Ford Ébène Fumé
Viktor&Rolf Spicebomb EDT
YSL Opium Pour Homme EDT
YSL Tuxedo
Álvarez Gómez Agua de Colonia Concentrada

House Index

A working alphabetical index of fragrance houses represented in Field Guide No. 01. Add page references after final Vellum pagination.

4711

Acqua di Parma

Aesop

Akro

Amouage

Andrea Maack

Apoteker Tepe

Aramis

Atelier Cologne

Azzaro

BeauFort London

Bentley

Bon Parfumeur

Boucheron

Calvin Klein

Caron

Cartier

CB I Hate Perfume

Chanel

Comme des Garçons

Costume National

D.R. Harris

D.S. & Durga

Dana

Davidoff

Demeter

Dior

Diptyque Dunhill
Eau de Rochas
Emporio Armani
Essential Parfums
Etat Libre d'Orange
Ffern
Fischersund
Floris
Frédéric Malle
Fzotic
Geo. F. Trumper
Goutal
Gucci
Guerlain
Haeckels
Heeley
Hermès
Histoires de Parfums
Imaginary Authors
Issey Miyake
Jacques Fath
January Scent Project
John Varvatos
Jorum Studio
Kerosene Knize
Laboratorio Olfattivo
Lagerfeld
Lalique
Le Labo

Loewe
L'Artisan Parfumeur
L'Occitane
Maison Alhambra
Maison Crivelli
Marc-Antoine Barrois Memo
MFK
Miller Harris
Naomi Goodsir
Nasomatto
Nicolai
Nishane
Olympic Orchids
Ormonde Jayne
Orto Parisi
Papillon
Parfum d'Empire
Parfums de Marly
Penhaligon's
Perris Monte Carlo
Pineward
Polo
Profumum Roma
Puig
Ralph Lauren Rochas
Roger & Gallet
Rogue Perfumery Royall
Salvador Dali

Serge Lutens

Tauer

Terre d'Hermès

Tom Ford

Viktor&Rolf

YSL

Álvarez Gómez

Materials / Notes Index

A working index of recurring materials, notes and sensory references. Add page references after final Vellum pagination.

amber

amberwood

animalic leather

basil

bay laurel benzoin

bergamot

birch bitter orange

black ink

black pepper

blood orange rind

camphor

cedar cherry heat

cinnamon

cinnamon bark

citrus peel

concrete after rain

cypress

damp bark

dry earth

frankincense

gasoline

ginger

grapefruit

green herbs hotel linen juniper lavender leather lemon peel machine oil marble Mediterranean seawater mineral air moss neroli

old books old wood orange blossom orange rind patchouli pencil shavings petrichor
pine needles rain resin river stone road tar rosemary rubber smoke soil tobacco tool drawer turpentine vetiver

wet granite

wet stone

woods

Memory & Place Index

A working index of people, places and memory anchors in the archive. Add page references after final Vellum pagination.

Alicia

Amy

Baccarat Rouge 540 / No Good Explanation

Blum's

Cool Water / South Coast Plaza

Crescent City

Dorchester

El Portal luggage

Europe with Grandpa

Grandpa

Green Water / family road trip

Hotel Negresco

Hotel Schweizerhof Luzern

Jacques Cousteau museum

Marbella

Mediterranean

Mendocino

Merced River

Michael Mina

Monte Carlo

Nice

Pier 36

Sacramento

San Francisco

Sears Fine Food

South Coast Plaza

St. Francis Hotel

The Bend in the Merced
The family Amy and I made
Will and Maddie
Yosemite

Discovery Register

PRODUCTION PLACEHOLDER

No separate approved production source/content supplied; placed after index sections for review.

No contact-sheet thumbnail or generated substitute used.

Field Record

PRODUCTION PLACEHOLDER

No separate approved production source/content supplied; grouped in late back matter for interim review.

No contact-sheet thumbnail or generated substitute used.

Undiscovered Specimens

PRODUCTION PLACEHOLDER

No separate approved production source supplied; placed as final designed-plate placeholder after working indexes and late back-matter placeholders.

No contact-sheet thumbnail or generated substitute used.